

Learning Objectives: Connecting Activities to the Beaver Scout Trail Badges

Every human activity is directed at achieving objectives, be it making a cup of tea to buying a house!

In the Beaver Scout programme we use objectives to help guide us to make sure we help run beneficial scouting adventures. These are called learning objectives. There are 36 of them, and they are connected to the SPICES. As the SPICES are a very broad idea covering the development of young people, the learning objectives help focus the programme on tangible age appropriate outcomes. For example, the 'Social' can mean practically anything involving interactions between people, so learning objectives, such as 'Be welcoming and include others in the things I do' or 'Be a Friend' are much more useful to work with.

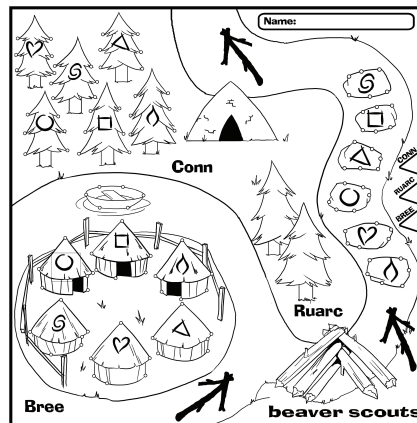

The six members of the Fox Lodge help the Beaver Scouts to run a programme which engages with all six of the SPICES to advance in the Beaver Scout Trail Badges. By picking one or two members of the Lodge, and using the ideas associated with them they progress in that area.

For example, when we make and follow tracking signs, Fionn (Social) helps us understand different forms of communication and Star (Intellectual) helps us work in a team. Afterwards, the Beaver Scouts could then colour in these dots on their trail map.

The learning objectives sheets in this document are designed to help the Scouters connect the SPICES and the activities you do. These are not meant for the Beaver Scouts. Each sheet is the learning objectives for the areas of the SPICES, with the relevant character. These learning objectives are marked off according to activities suggested in the Beaver Scout book. So, if your Colony organises a field sports day you can check which of the learning objectives are relevant, such as Being considerate to others (Social), Be active (Physical), and Be open to Challenging myself (Intellectual).

The intention is not to discuss it in these terms with the Beaver Scouts, but you could help them see that the sports day is about them being active outside and trying their best, you could tell them that they are like Zena and Star, respectively, and they can mark those areas of on their trail map!

Most importantly, this is a tool to help you understand that by running an active programme the Beaver Scouts are making progress in the SPICES anyway! This is nothing extra or new, it is just a way of assisting you connect your activities and the SPICES. Using these sheets you can help the Beaver Scouts mark off their trail map and get their Beaver Scout Trail Badges.
